Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.BONUS TIP #26 When all else fails, feel free to use our secret weapon: BETTY. Betty is the make believe woman we blamed for everything. Lost hearing aids, missing money, stale coffee: Betty. Excerpt from.40/40 Vision In November of 2013, I brought Jazz and my mom to a caregiver conference. In the midst of my ready-made speech, Jazz raised her hand. And so I called on her. Mom! Mom, tell everyone how fun grandma s funeral was! Jazz just put the fun in funeral. I had to stop and think. My gram never had a driver s license. She barely left the house, even when she was healthy. She spent the last six years dying from a broken heart and Alzheimer s disease. And yet my gram, somehow, made forty new friends that were half her age during that time too. And they all came to say goodbye. If she were here, she wouldn t have known any of them. But they knew her. They were laughing, crying, retelling stories, singing her favorite song: Let s Make Believe That We re Happy. They were having fun. I was in awe. It made me think maybe our caregiving fiasco wasn t a fiasco at all. Maybe, just maybe, we got a few things right. You should have seen this wake; it was standing room only. And, damn, was it fun. Excerpt from.The Dread Zone .Full-time caregivers don t enter a dread zone as part of their daily routine. Their tactic is adapting to a world that doesn t appear to have a beginning or end, so they adjust by staying even keeled-managing high energy, low energy, no energy,...
