The objective is to minimize the long-run expected average number of customers in the system subject to a constraint on the long-run expected average output rate. Under balanced heavy loading conditions, this scheduling problem can be approximated by a control problem involving Brownian motion. Linear programming is used to reduce the workload formulation of this control problem to a constrained singular control problem for a multidimensional Brownian motion. The finite difference approximation method is then used to find a linear programming solution to the latter problem. The solution is interpreted in terms of the original queueing system in order to obtain an effective scheduling policy. The priority sequencing policy is based on dynamic reduced costs from a linear program, and the workload regulating...
